

6.3_F

1. In client-server networks, one computer – usually more powerful – acts as a server; provides data to the client computers in the network.
2. During the 2010s, much of the copper wire which connected the phone network was replaced by fibre-optic cables.
3. Wi-Fi became more common, providing internet connections for laptops or other mobile devices over short distances, without the need to link with a cable.
4. To make effective use of the physical infrastructure of networks, computers need clear standards for communication.
5. The internet backbone describes a collection of networks with a very high capacity that link internet networks with a lower capacity together.

6.3_F

	Clause	Type of clause	Relative pronoun refers to	Possible sentences
2	which connected the phone network
5	which link internet networks with a lower capacity together

6.3_F

Answers

	Clause	Type of clause	Relative pronoun refers to	Possible sentences
2	which connected the phone network	relative	copper wire	The copper wire connected the phone network.
5	which link internet networks with a lower capacity together	relative	the internet backbone	The internet backbone links internet networks with a lower capacity together.